

Climate science must be more open, say MPs

---

The British Commons Science and Technology Committee said:

We consider that climate scientists should take steps to make available all the data that support their work, including raw data... and full methodological workings, including the computer codes.”

For more information, read the BBC article at:

Webpage: <http://news.bbc.co.uk>

GMD agrees with the Commons Science and Technology Committee in that it is important to publish model code.